WOMEN'S GARMENTS.

Some of the Things Embry & Co. Are Showing This Spring.

There is a finished nobby look about women's garments that Embry & Co. are showing this Spring, a something that means attractiveness, hard to tell, but easy to discern and appreciate.

Mr. Embry's early trip to New York gave him access to extreme models, some of which will not be duplicated and can not be seen elsewhere.

The hand embroidered waist is much in evidence, taffeta skirts have been revived and fancy silk suits in etou effects, redingotes and various others, will mean much to the complete wardrobe.

A visit to Embry & Co.'s handsome shop replete with all that is new and enticing, will convince you.

BEFORE buying your clover or timothy seed, see us. We have a nice lot of both these seeds and you will find our prices right.

STOCK AND CROP.

—In Shelby, at the stock sale of Col. Harry Weissenger, yearling mules averaged $125.50 and aged mules $148. Duroc Jersey gilts averaged $15.

—James R. Magowan, of Montgomery, purchased a pair of 2-year-old mules at Midway for $410, and sold them at a nice profit before he got them home.

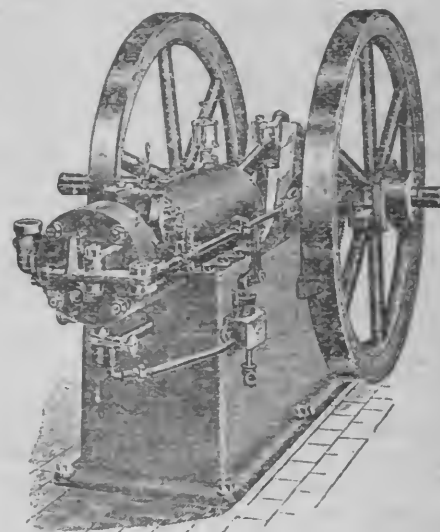

—K. L. Ritchie, of Stony Point, this county, sold to Wm. McCray, of North Middletown, his crop of 15,000 pounds of tobacco at 10 cents per pound, except 1,200 pounds at 4 cents to be delivered at once in winter order.

—At Flemingsburg Court there were about 150 cattle on the market, most all of which sold. Yearling heifers sold at $15; fat cows at $34; ewes at $34; stock hogs $1.00 to $1.75; fat hogs $1.50 and less.

—Attention is directed to the ads elsewhere in this issue of Wiggins, 2-18½, and Jay Bird, 2-31½. Both of these stallions are superior sires and horse breeders will do well to consider these animals before booking their mares.

—Bacon and Floyd Lair received Tuesday a check from the Continental Tobacco Company for $3,112.20, proceeds for a crop of ten acres of tobacco. This is an average of $311.22 per acre and is one of the best sales made in Bourbon.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR THE PROPOSED TAX ON BACHELORS.

The Tax Should Be Increased to the Limit on the Bachelor Who, After Proper Encouragement, Claims He Can Find No One Willing to Marry Him.

The Type Who Fears That He "Cannot Support Her in the Manner to Which She Is Accustomed" Should Be Turned Over to the Father of a Large Family of Girls.

Provision Should Be Made for Those Who Make an Honest Effort to Better Their Condition.

CHADWICK TRIAL.

Several Witnesses Testified in the Hearing in the Bankruptcy Court, Cleveland.

MONEY LOANED ON HER JEWELRY

Henry Wuerst Charged Bonus of $500 in Addition to 7 Per Cent Interest on $2,500.

One Witness Produced Three Checks
For Sums Aggregating $85,000,
Which Were Indorsed By Mr.
and Mrs. Chadwick.

Cleveland, O., March 2.—In the Mrs.
Chadwick hearing in the bankruptcy
court, Henry Wuerst, of Elyria, O., testified that he had made Mrs. Chadwick several loans. On one of these, for $2,500, he had charged a bonus to Mrs. Chadwick of $500 in addition to 6 or 7 per cent interest.

"This was pretty high. Things looked cloudy," said Wuerst, "and I charged her higher than usual."

Wuerst said he was invariably secured by jewelry which he had appraised and which, he said, he declared amply sufficient in every instance for his perfect security in loans made to Mrs. Chadwick.

The witness said that Mrs. Chadwick now owed him $16,500, for which he still held notes for $22,500. For this he held as collateral jewelry sufficient to cover the face of the claim;
and more, but Collector of Customs Leach had them now, he said.

Charged Big Bonuses.

Mr. Coons was called to the stand.
He produced three checks for sums aggregating $85,000, indorsed by Mrs.
Chadwick and her husband. They were dated August 18, 1903. The checks were drawn upon separate banks and in various sums at Mrs.
Chadwick's suggestion. Mr. Coons could not recall what bonus he got for the loans. He could not reply to the question as to whether the amount was $12,000. He had made use of the Reynolds certificate only at the Wade-Park bank. Mr. Reynolds refused to let him see the certificate, saying that it was private matter. Coons said he met Mrs. Chadwick through H. Clark Ford, her attorney. Coons said that there was an understanding that he and Ford were to assume half the loan and share the profit.

H. Clark Ford was called to the witness stand. He met Mrs. Chadwick in 1903 and was her attorney thereafter for a time.

Trustee Looser's Statement.

Mr. Ford said he received a communication from Mr. Coons. Mr. Ford could not recall how much he had received. It was the only transaction of the kind he had ever engaged in,
he said.

He thought the bonus was not one-third of $25,000. Ford said he arranged loans with Oberlin college, first for $60,000 and then for $75,000 more.

He received no commission on any loan except that from Coons. Ford lent Mrs. Chadwick $1,000 one day and $2,000 the next. He recovered the principal but no interest.

Court then adjourned. Nathan Looser, trustee for the Chadwick estate, believes that he can recover for the creditors large sums of money from persons who have made loans to Mrs.
Chadwick and received more than the legal rate of interest.

Receipts and Expenditures.

Washington, March 2.—The monthly
statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for February, 1905, the total receipts were $44,608,072, and the expenditures $41,461,234, leaving a surplus for the month of $3,146,838.

THE SUPPLY BILLS.

The Last One Was Passed in the House of Representatives.

Washington, March 2.—During the day the senate considered and passed three supply bills, aggregating an appropriation of more than $357,000,000, and at night took up a fourth bill carrying more than $67,000,000. The appropriation measures passed during the day were: The post office bill, carrying $181,526,843; the pension bill, carrying $138,000,000, and the river and harbor bill, carrying, in immediate appropriations and continuing contracts $38,350,899. The senate also agreed to the conference reports on the military academy and agricultural department appropriation bills. The Philippines import tariff bill was passed and also several bills of minor importance. At the night session the sundry civil appropriation bill was considered.

The house passed the general deficiency appropriation bill, the last of the great supply measures to be acted on during this congress. The total amount carried is $31,224,079. The temper of the house regarding the Swayne impeachment verdict was shown when amendments were attached to the bill restricting the $10 a day limit for expenses of United States judges so that expenditures above $5 a day shall be certified on proper vouchers, with the further proviso that in case a judge presents a false claim for expenses he shall be fined not less than $100 and imprisoned for not fewer than ten days. In committee of the whole an appropriation of $190,000 was voted for mileage of senators and members for attending the second session of the present congress. The conference report on the military academy bill was adopted and other appropriation bills passed by the senate were sent to conference.

MONTHLY DEBT STATEMENT.

A Decrease of $355,461 During the Month of February.

Washington, March 2.—The monthly
statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business February 28, 1905, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $989,574,158, which is a decrease for the month of $355,461. The debt is recapitulated
as follows:

Interest bearing debt, $895,157,520;
debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,417,320; debt bearing no interest, $383,681,146. Total, $1,280,255,997.

This amount, however, does not include $1,001,134,969 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand, which is held for their redemption.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

The Mock Court Trial of Ex-Gov. Taylor, of Kentucky.

Des Moines, Ia., March 2.—The jury in the case of commonwealth of Kentucky against William Taylor, formerly governor, tried in a mock court of the Drake university's college of Iowa, has reported that it had failed to reach an agreement. A message was dispatched to former Gov. Taylor, in Indianapolis. The court room has been packed for a week.

Battleship South Carolina.

Washington, March 2.—One of the new battleships authorized in the pending naval appropriation bill will be named, it is said, the South Carolina. The request that the ship be so named was made by the president.

Circulation Statement.

Washington, March 2.—The monthly circulation statement shows that at the close of business on February 28, 1905, the total circulation of national bank notes was $469,203,840, an increase for the year of $38,379,580.

Taken at His Word.

Canon McAlpine recently delivered an address to Irish unemployed at Clifden, county Galway, declaring that people would be fools to starve "so long as fat sheep were grazing on the hillside or sleek kine were browsing on the plain."
A few nights afterward a humorist stole all his reverence's turkeys and left a note thanking him for the hint.

The Lady Suspected.

"Don't you think," asked Mrs. Old-castle, "that our minister is inclined to be hypercritical?"
"Oh, my, no!" replied her hostess. "I believe he's just as good as he pretends, but I ain't so sure about his wife. If she ain't a good bit of a hypercrit I don't know what one is."
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Priest of the People.

Father Gapon, the Russian priest who is such a prominent figure just now, is said to be guided in great measure by this epigrammatic advice given him long ago by his father: "Be a priest, but do not forget to be a man.
Love the oppressed and remember that the only religion worth living and dying for is justice."

Island for Drunkards.

The Glasgow corporation is considering a scheme under which the city's chronic inebriates shall be banished to the Islet of Shuna, one of the Hebrides group. This islet is leased to a farmer, and has been practically forgotten by the corporation of Glasgow,
who have owned it for a century.—St.
James' Gazette.

No Tobacco There.

Ascum—Why don't you try one of those tobacco cures on your son?
Wiseman—That wouldn't have any effect on him.
"O, yes; they simply kill all appetite for tobacco."
"But he smokes cigarettes."—Philadelphia Press.

The Persian Minister.

Gen. Morteza Khan, the new Persian minister to this country, is a bachelor, extremely wealthy and comes of a noble line. His father was the first man in the empire to introduce European ideas and started the Iran, the first publication approaching the newspaper as Americans understand it.

Woman's Great Need.

Some day a great reformer in whose aspirations sense is duly blended with enthusiasm will make and win a great fight for adequate pockets in women's street clothes. Why woman does not have more and better pockets in her clothes is one of the mysteries of civilization.

Woman Writer's Watches.

The famous Austrian novelist, Mme.
Mary von Ebner-Eschenbach, possesses
one of the finest collections of watches.
A number of these timepieces are over 200 years old, and many of them are set in diamonds. The collection is said to be worth over $50,000.

Room for Blind Pigs.

After the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as a state the sale of liquor is to be prohibited there for 21 years. It is safe to say that the blind pig will at once take a prominent place among Oklahoma institutions.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Daily Thought.

Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm; it is the real allegory of the tale of Orpheus; it moves stones; it charms brutes. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity and truth accomplishes no victories without it.—Bulwer.

WINTER MEAT EATING.

The Poor Stomach's Tale of Woe—Just Now Mi-o-na is Needed.

At this season of the year thousands of people are already showing the ill symptoms that are sure to result from the usual winter diet. Indoor life, meat-eating, hearty food, lack of exercise, overwork, and poor ventilation spell "sickness," and poor health.

If the stomach cannot do its work properly, ill health is sure to follow. Mi-o-na is the one medicine that assures a natural digestion, strengthens the stomach, that soothes and heals all irritation, congestion, and inflammation in the stomach and bowels. It is this that makes it a certain and guaranteed cure for all stomach troubles.

If the digestion is impaired, the blood is impoverished and becomes filled with poisonous impurities, deranging the whole system and causing sickness and suffering. Mi-o-na, acting upon the stomach and digestive organs cures sleeplessness, nervous troubles, headaches, backaches, and general weakness and debility.

If you are weak and ailing the chances are that it is due to a diseased stomach, but you can be cured by using Mi-o-na. Ask Clarke & Co., the reliable drug firm, to show you the strong guarantee under which Mi-o-na is sold. Mi-o-na costs but 50 cents a box. If it does not help you, the price is absolutely nothing.

When the breeze is softly whispering a message to the trees, And the purple clover's climbing almost to a fellow's knees, And the great big ox-eyed daisies are nodding over there— Where a bird's song's sort of 'littin' an' a driftin' through the air, Like a silver-sided shallop on a tinkling perfumed stream Flowing through the air above me soft and pleasant as a dream, And I'm lying 'mongst the shadows cool an' comfy as can be, Then my memory contrary brings a different scene to me.

Then I'm standing in a canyon with the hills on either side, Where wild spirits and unruly seems forever to abide, There are large Titanic boulders in the maddened torrent's path And the hills above re-echo with the thunders of its wrath, And the trees that lean above it drip with spray that it has flung In the maddest of its fury when it twisted, turned and swung With the fury of its effort to escape its bonds and flee To the flower-spangled meadows where the birds and blossoms be.

It's the passion of the torrent to escape its bonds and go Where the world is blossom bordered and life's tide is calm and slow; While the dweller in the lowlands by the sleepy, tinkling rills Longs forever for the battle of the torrents, and the hills Rising crag on crag above him, till he seems life all alone In a world some vast convulsion has caught up and overthrown. 'Tis the wander-lust that pricks us till our spirits long to range Like a woman searching, searching hubbly's pockets after "change."

The Iron Brigade

A STORY OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC

By GEN. CHARLES KING
Author of "Norman Holt," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

CHAPTER XII.

"IN THE TEETH OF THE BRIGADE."

Once more the Badger-Hoosier brigade was swinging away southwestward. For the sixth time in less than a year the men of the "Black Hats" at the head of column had picked their way over the stone-ribbed pike, saying opprobrious things of Virginia pathmasters. An impudent lot were these fellows in the imitation "Kossuths." Marvelously snappy and precise in drill, steady on parade, enduring on the march and reasonably respectful toward their officers (who were the only ones in the division to don and habitually wear the full dress headgear of the regular service), the rank and file were blessed with not a little soldier skepticism as to the value or stability of other commands in and out of the brigade, and a calmly critical attitude toward officers other than those of their selection. They had not been over well content with their original field and staff, and, for lack of leaders of that rank, had become somewhat split up at first Bull Run, fighting sturdily all the same by company or squad to the flag end, and never knowing they were whipped when finally "herded" off the field. Now, however, they had men at their head—colonel, lieutenant-colonel and major—by whom they positively swore and on whose skill and valor they would have banked their last cent. Yet, with all their regard for these, their honored leaders, it must be owned the Black Hats gave them lots of trouble. They would gey the rest of the brigade and lord it generally over the whole division, only one other regiment of which had as yet faced the foe in battle. They had a curious defect of vision when "outside" officers happened along, and were forever being complained of as failing to "render honors," whereas they were heard on more than one occasion unblushingly to declare they saw, but didn't suppose the strangers could be officers. They were preternaturally keen sighted as sentries toward men of other regiments "running guard" or smuggling contraband of war, and were correspondingly blind when the culprit was of their own complexion. They were probably the best drilled and positively the worst hated regiment in the whole division—and relished one distinction quite as much as the other—when they were marching this third time on Manassas, and the little West Pointer in saddle at their head thanked God that at last he had them where, with work against a common foe, there was possibility of keeping them out of mischief.

Centerville had been passed, Bull Run recrossed, and Bristoe reached—a point beyond their previous explorations. Then back had they to go to meet a threatened raid on that railway communications, and, that matter settled, again they were trudging through the well-remembered wood roads when, as a turn of the way brought their foremost company in full view of the fine sweep of country off to the west, the gray-bearded colonel, for the time commanding the brigade, reined out to the right for a look at his men, and his tall, born-soldier of an adjutant rode alongside the black-bearded, dark-featured, stocky little leader of the Black Hats, pointed with his gauntlet hand to the blue curtain of the Bull Run range and remarked: "I'd give a good deal to know just what that fellow Jackson's doing behind that screen to-day."

"Why so?" asked O'Connor, shortly.

"Shields licked him well at Kernstown. Banks has turned his whole force back there. Blenker's big division has gone to reinforce them. Why, we've got enough men there to eat 'em alive—Jackson and all."

"First catch your rabbit," said the adjutant, musingly. "Old Stonewall knows every footpath in the valley—every path through the mountains. He'll trick Banks and Fremont, sure's your born colonel. Then we'll have a shy at him."

"May the Lord grant it," was the pious answer, as the colonel looked wistfully away toward the little rift in the dark ridge where, ten miles distant, lay Thoroughfare Gap, the best and shortest route to the Shenandoah—the gap through which four months later this same much-discussed and as yet little-known Jackson was with such fatal effect to pour his columns on the union flank and rear.

It was a moist afternoon. The men in the marching column, heavily burdened with bulging knapsack and double blanket and the long Springfield over their burly shoulders, whipped over their hats and swept the coat-sleeve over their dripping brows, peering curiously at the old colonel sitting sturdily in saddle and watching their array. A grim smile stole over his grizzled face as his own battalion came striding forth in the wake of the "Scoffing Second." Then the kindly eyes clouded with something like displeasure at sight of a tall, lanky civilian on a decrepit gray, riding with the lieutenant-colonel commanding. He had seen the man before many a mile from the spot and more than a week away. "How came you here?" he asked, as the civilian ambled out of the column and touched his worn hat-brim.

"My place is just over yahnnduh, colonel. Phaps you doan' remember my comin' to you with a pass, back o' Fairfax," and the tall stranger looked confidently into the grizzled, sun-burned face. "Been in to Alexandria, yo' know, for supplies. Wagon went sho't out by stone bridge."

Keenly studying the veteran's face, he suddenly added: "Ain't Col. Bayard's cavalry out there?"

"Ask me no questions, my friend, and I'll tell you no lies," was the wary answer. "Gen. McDowell's pass compels me to let you ride along with the column, but doesn't require me to post you as to our movements. You know too much now to be traveling toward Jackson's people, and—have you shown that pass to the division commander?"

"Why, it was he who got it for me," answered the Virginian, placidly. "It was I that took him Lieut. Benton's pistol and told him of his capture."

BREAKFAST WAS SPOILING.

What's more, I'm 'specting to get further news of the lieutenant. Why, hyuh comes the general now, and if you don't mind, colonel, I reckon I'll ride with him a piece."

Graybeard glanced half angrily over his shoulder. A few yards north of the road there was a barren little eminence, on the crest of which there had suddenly appeared the division commander with two of his staff. Unslung their fieldglasses, they seemed for a moment studying the westward lowlands, then came trotting swiftly toward the column.

"Colonel, there are scattered parties of cavalry out there coming swift this way, too—out north of Bristoe—between that and Gainesville. They don't seem to be watching the column, either. Send one regiment out along the Gainesville road as far as Bethlehem church and let them throw out skirmishers. Halt the rest of the brigade here. Good afternoon, Mr. Jennings," he continued, in civil acknowledgment of the Virginian's salutation. "I thought you were home by this time."

"General," said he, coming alongside, "I want to say one thing, suh, and it's this—that young gentleman of your staff was so kind to Dr. Chilton that it completely staggered the doctor to have him knocked down and captured. He's bound to take the best of cayuh of him till he's well enough to take cayuh of himself—an' then—"

"Well, and then, Mr. Jennings?" asked the general, impatiently, for he was eager to get on ahead.

"You look out for his turning up any day! If he ain't exchanged, I'm bettin' somethin' else will happen."

"My understanding is that Dr. Chilton has made himself personally responsible for Mr. Benton's safekeeping so long as he's allowed to remain with him—"

"That's true, I reckon," answered Jennings. "But," and here his lantern jaws relaxed in whimsical grin, "the doctor ain't the only brainy one in that family, general. The girl that planned young Ladue's escape from your fellows at Henry house may play it on Ewell's folks at Gaud'sville just as easy."

"So you know Ewell's at Gordonville!" said the general, whirling suddenly on the speaker. "And you know the lady who got Mr. Ferguson into his scrape, do you?"

"Gettin' another fella out o' one—yes—suh," answered Jennings, unflinchingly. "And she made a big play that night to get still another out of a bad fix—less I'm mistaken. Why, general, you jus' ought to heuh Judge Armistead talk about that girl. He says half the men in Albemarle, university and all, were in love with her when the war broke out, and the judge has a mighty pretty daughter of his own, too. I rather hoped some of our cavalry might be pushin' out toward Hoppewell to-night. Ain't Col. Bayard somewhere out that way? Hullo! There's a shot!"

Not one shot, but two, three, in quick succession. Somewhere ahead among the patches and thickets of scrub oak and pine the scattering advance guard had suddenly met swift galloping lads in gray. Then came the distant sound of half a dozen shots—carbines—and the answering sputter of a ragged volley. Well out to the front a bugle sounded some lively call, and, spurring full gallop from the rear, the tall adjutant went bending and twisting away among the trees until out of sight ahead, and then his powerful voice came ringing back: "This way, captain—lively! Double quick!"

Evidently Haskell had sighted some of the quarry and closer at hand than those ahead along the roadway, for there came a crackle of shots—the bark of the cavalry weapon, the saucy pop of a revolver somewhere among the thickets to the left of the column; then a shrill burst of cheers from the deploying blue coats on the westward flank. All of a sudden through the bushes tumbled a little squad of troopers in gray, making heroic effort to carry off a helpless comrade. The general and his aides had spurred in with the skirmishers, and were just in time to see two riderless horses tearing away among the trees across an open glade, while half a dozen daring, devoted fellows in saddle were stoutly interposing between the forward rush of the excited Badgers and three of their number surrounding and supporting a tall officer who had been lifted sideways to the back of a plunging steed.

"Halt!" "Halt!" "Dismount!" "Surrender!" rang the hoarse shouts of the dozen bluecoats, dashing in pursuit. Bang! Bang! came the defiant response of the few defenders. Bang! Bang! bellowed a brace of Springfields in reply. "Don't shoot!" "Hold your fire!" yelled the general. "Don't shoot!" "Don't shoot!" echoed the staff, for the luckless cavalier, reeling in his seat, went sliding into the arms of his loyal followers, while the devil of a horse whirled round, tugging, straining at the reins and striving to break away. "Dismount!" "Down with you!" "Off with you!" cried the pursuers, officer and man, as another terrified horse tore, wildly neighing, in chase of the foremost. It was a desperate effort on part of the grays. Their comrade troopers were too far off to help them, even could they drive through the stout skirmish line already far flung across the field beyond.

With a last wave of his white hand, the officer seemed ordering his defenders to save themselves, and those in saddle, with parting shots and defiant yells—one of them even hurling in rage his emptied revolver at the tall adjutant, the foremost man in the rush—darted away, bending low over the streaming manes, with the bullets of half a score of Springfields whizzing past their ears.

The adjutant was off his big, raw-boned bay in an instant and, bending over the fainting man, unscrewed the cap of his flask and held it to the pale lips beneath the sweeping mustache. "A major, hey?" he said, as he noted the brilliant braids of gold lace on the handsome uniform frock. "What is a major doing out here with only a squad of you boys?"

"Is he wounded?" asked the chief as he glanced at the two silent stripplings in gray. One of them faced the commander.

"Horse fell suh—rolled on him—broke his leg," said he, with a salute that told unerringly of soldier teaching; so, too, did the speaker's pose. Instinctively he was standing at attention. He knew the rank betrayed by that yellow sash.

"Give this young gentleman a sip from your flask, Haskell; I fear he's— Why, my lad, you're wounded! Look to him, some of you!" cried the general, for the boy had grown ashen pale and was reeling when strong arms caught and lowered him.

"Sure, general. He's shot through the breast," said a bearded soldier, tearing aside the trooper's jacket and displaying a blood-wet shirt beneath.

"And wouldn't show it," answered the general. "That's the way with them. Send for a surgeon, captain."

And then the general, too, was off his horse and bending over the stricken lad. "Do you know his name—and home?" he asked of the pale-faced young Virginian, standing trembling a bit with excitement beside him. The lad flushed, looked distressed, embarrassed, but seemed to believe it his soldier duty to give no information whatever to the enemy. It was Jennings who spoke, his voice breaking harshly, somehow, on the silence of the surrounding group, as he elbowed a way through the curious circle and caught sight of the swooning boy.

"I know him, general. He's one of our best, suh," and now Jennings, too, had thrown himself upon his knees. "It's Floyd Pelham, suh, of Charlottesville. It'll break his mother's heart, suh, if he's done for."

The wail in the Virginian's voice seemed to catch the ear and rouse the faculties of the reviving officer.

"Who's that—done for?" he faintly asked. "Not Floyd Pelham?" And tracing his hands upon the turf, he struggled to a sitting posture, while Jennings sprang to his feet and stared. "Maj. Lounsbury! Good God, suh, you wounded, too? Why, I'd no idea—"

"No idea, I suppose," interposed the major, with cutting, sarcastic emphasis, "that your friends, the Chiltons, had turned that Yankee lieutenant loose. Well, you needn't rejoice, gentlemen, we've got him again—and right in the teeth of his own brigade!"

CHAPTER XIII.

RIVANNA TO RAPIDAN.

Long as he lives Fred Benton will never forget that night ride from the Chiltons and the thrilling days that followed. Something heaved up through the dim starlight and lightly tapped against the claspboards below the sill, and something black came "swarming" up the other something—Pomp again, and Pomp chuckled at sound of Benton's whispered hail.

"We've got a ladder this time, suh. Didn't dass try it befo' wid dem sojus at de bahn," and by ladder, not by lightning rod, was the descent accomplished. Dusky hands helped the crippled soldier into saddle. Dusky hands waved him good-by and good luck.

Then Benton gave himself unquestioning to him whom she, his imperious queen, had appointed as his guide, and together they rode forth into the murmuring night.

When the suburbs were left behind and they had found the open country his escort turned and said: "Kin you stand a little canter, Marstuh?" and Benton recognized the voice of Dusky Dan, and "stood" accordingly. They forded, somewhere toward two o'clock, a little branch, a tributary of the rushing Rivanna, and were still heading westward when Fred's darkey guide left him with both horses at the edge of a grove, while he went forward afoot and reconnoitered. Presently he came back rejoicing. "Dey ain't a soul a lookin' out fo' de bridge, suh. Dey's all over Gaud'sville way. We save nigh onto five miles hyuh," and so led on again, the hoof-beats sounding hollow on the planking of some old-time truss across a swift, exuberant mountain stream, running bank full and far and near, said Dan, unfathomable. Still on through whispering aisles of forest trees, through squaky cross-country bridge paths, far from pike or toll road, until at dawn old Daniel led his soldier charge from the beaten track, and turning square to the left began a tortuous climb that brought them presently to two little cabins. Here, while Benton was made comfortable in his blanket Dan held converse with other unseen occupants, giving explicit directions, faintly audible in the hiss of frying bacon and the bubble of boiling coffee. Benton heard vaguely, drowsily, the words "Swift Run Gap, Sperryville, Orleans, Hedgman river" and when he roused himself in response to vigorous yet regretful prodding, he knew not how long thereafter, a new voice sounded on his sleepy senses. Another guardian bent over him in the shape of a negro with wrinkled face and gray-white, kinky hair, but a world of sympathy and interest in his somble eyes. Marstuh's breakfast was spilling and it was time that they were moving.

Where was Daniel? "Daniel had to go back to Marse Chilton's. Miss Rosalie done fixed all dat."

Servant Problem.

A woman in Baltimore recently lost two servants the same day. Remembering a girl whom a friend had recommended, a message was sent to her by the Baltimore woman. The girl immediately replied to the message in person and was engaged on the spot. When she was asked whether she could at once enter upon the discharge of the duties of her new place she replied that she could do so, at the same time indicating her bag in the hall. "I fetched it along, mem," said she, "as I thought mebbe you'd want me right away."

A weeks' trial proved the girl to be satisfactory. It was then that the mistress inquired: "Maggie, do your people know where you are?" "No, mum," was the answer. "Ye see, I came here at once." "Won't they worry about you, not knowing where you are?" "Well, mum, said the girl, "Mr. Clancy might be a trifle anxious, mum. That's my husband, mum."—N. Y. Herald.

A True Comedian.

The funny man of the piece was indulging in a bit of horse-play on the stage when he struck his head violently, entirely by accident, against one of the pillars of the scene. On hearing the thud every one uttered a cry. "No great harm done," said the comedian. "Just had me a napkin, a glass of water, and a salt-cellar. These were brought, and he sat down, folded the napkin in the form of a bandage, dipped it in the glass, and emptied the salt-cellar on the wet part. Having thus prepared a compress according to prescription, and when every one expected he would apply it to his forehead, he gravely rose and tied it round the pillar.—Tit-Bits.

Mutual.

A man with a painful expression of countenance sat on a public seat. "Are you ill?" some one asked. "No."

"Have you lost anything?" "Never had anything to lose."

"What's the matter, then?" "I'm sitting on a wasp."

"Why don't you get up?" "That was my first impulse, but I began to think that I was hurting the wasp as badly as he was hurting me, and I concluded to sit here a while."—Smith's Weekly.

WHERE WAR STILL RAGED.

Something for the Correspondents to Do When Nations Were at Peace.

Even at the early dawn of Utopian peace it became evident that the era of universal peace had arrived, says the New York Sun. The nations discovered that the great gun had been invented that would send a projectile through any armor, while, on the other hand, the submarine had been invented that would resist the attack of any gun. The submarine had been tested that would destroy any battleship, that is, if not caught by the submarine destroyer, which in its turn might seem to the submarine destroyer.

Quite naturally this deplorable condition of worldwide peace frightened the Amalgamated Conclave of War Correspondents, whose members found their occupation gone. Accordingly at a meeting the president arose and presented a resolution for disarmament.

"There are no more conflicts. Cruelty and carnage is a thing of the past. We might as well go into other professions," he said.

Just then Richard Chetoff O'Higgins arose and objected in a speech that proved war correspondents to be still necessary.

"No carnage, no conflicts!" he roared. "Why, the editors can still send us to write up woman's suffrage meetings, college bawling and the Brooklyn bridge crash at six!"

MEN AT WASHINGTON

CHARACTER STUDY OF SOME STATESMEN.

SWAYNE IMPEACHMENT CASE

Admiral Dewey Enjoying Life at the Capital—Decorations for Inauguration Celebration—Spoon-er's Move for Desk Lore.

WASHINGTON.—As unsentimental as an oyster and with no more sense of fear than a graven image, is a senator's description of Representative Henry W. Palmer, of Pennsylvania, who is at the head of the house managers now conducting the impeachment trial against Judge Charles Swayne, of the northern district of Florida. The senate is not overly well pleased with the duty of trying Judge Swayne on articles of impeachment which the house thrust upon it, and it is not disposed to make the path of the house managers any more pleasant than possible. In Mr. Palmer, however, the head of the managers, the senate has struck a pretty cold proposition, and a man on which very little impression can be made that does not accord with his own ideas of right and wrong or propriety.

Mr. Palmer would have been a typical Cromwellian Roundhead or an old New England Puritan, were it not for a kindly twinkle in his eye that relieves an otherwise austere countenance. He has a hard, square-cut face, covered with a brown beard mixed with gray, is tall, erect, somewhat angular and decidedly abrupt in his movements. He is just the sort of man that one would pick out as being very set in his opinions after they were formed, and devoted to his sense of duty. He is not awed by anybody or court, and is just as self-possessed in addressing the house or in addressing the high court of impeachment composed of dignified senators as he is in his law offices at home in Wilkesbarre, Pa. He never gets "rattled." He never betrays, by the slightest change of color or the quiver of a muscle, the slightest embarrassment, but carries himself as being the equal of any other man, no matter how high the office the latter may hold.

Mr. Palmer is absolutely fearless, as was demonstrated nearly 30 years ago, when he conducted the cases against the notorious "Molly Maguires" of the anthracite coal regions. He convicted some of the worst characters in all that region, although his life was almost daily threatened, and for a time he was a marked man by this organization.

The Sensitive Senate. HILE Mr. Palmer is very much in earnest in this impeachment trial, and believes in his innermost conscience that Judge Swayne has been guilty of conduct that should remove him from his high office, the senate acts almost as though it resented the bringing of the case before it.

The members of that august body do not seem to relish the appearance of seven men from the other house to occupy a place of apparently more prominence than they do themselves. It seems to be a hard task for the senators to sit and listen to outsiders talking. They take every opportunity of breaking in with questions, some of which seem so irrelevant as to suggest the idea that the senators wanted merely to get into the game and hear their own voices.

In the impeachment trial the senate is just as jealous of its prerogatives as when it is acting as a legislative body. The transition to a high court is not allowed to rob the body of its dignity and self-assertiveness. If any move is made on the part of the managers of the house it is immediately questioned and the senate wants to know why it is made and what authority there is for it. The house managers, however, have prepared themselves for every question and emergency. When the question of precedent is raised the managers are seen to go down into their inside pockets and pull out notes and manuscript that show how thoroughly they have posted themselves on everything pertaining to an impeachment trial. Mr. Palmer, Mr. Olmsted, Mr. Perkins, Mr. Powers, and the rest of the house managers have burned barrels of midnight oil in looking up previous impeachment trials from that of Warren Hastings down, and fortifying themselves on every possible point that can be brought up in dispute.

A Glimpse of Admiral Dewey.

HERE is probably no man in Washington who more thoroughly enjoys life than Admiral George Dewey. He is now in the mellow sixties, enjoying to the fullest the comforts, luxuries and rewards that have come to him after more than 40 years in the service of his country. Admiral Dewey is fitted by nature to get the most there is out of life. He is of a genial disposition, very fond of good society and of the delights that come to a man of his station at the capital of the nation. The knowledge that he has the affection, respect and admiration of the whole country adds to the content of his advancing years. He has everything at his command that can contribute to his happiness, and only an occasional twinge of rheumatic gout reminds him that he has to have a dash of bitter with the sweet.

Unlike so many sailor men, Admiral Dewey is a great lover of horses, and an expert in handling them. He drives one of the handsomest teams at the capital, and when he handles the reins his glowing face indicates that he is getting as much genuine enjoyment out of the exercise and sport as he ever had in directing the course of a vessel of war. His team are two splendid sorrels, well matched and gaited. The admiral always drives himself, and along the suburban roads he lets his horses out and spins along with the fastest roadsters at the capital.

The admiral is quite a social lion, although he does not overdo the society business. He does not care for any great show, but is happiest in his own home on Rhode Island avenue, which a grateful people donated to him after his famous victory at Manila bay, where he can have a choice company of his own selection. He is in demand at the best houses and in the highest diplomatic and official circles. He is an exquisite dresser, and his taste in this line years ago gave him the reputation of being more of a dilettante than of a naval fighter. How false this reputation was he demonstrated to the surprise of those who had not properly measured him in his daring work in the far east at the outbreak of the Spanish war.

Statues of Inaugural Decorations

HE recent Louisiana Purchase exposition will contribute a unique feature to the coming inauguration of President Roosevelt. More than $100,000 worth of plaster works of art, statues and allegorical specimens used at the world's fair have been presented to the inaugural committee, and will be used to adorn that section of Pennsylvania avenue immediately in front of the white house. Between two immense reviewing stands that will occupy the two sides of this square there will be erected a "Court of History," in which will be placed heroic statues of men who were pioneers in the northwest and who helped build up the country where Mr. Roosevelt spent several years as hunter and ranchman. These statues were used at the world's fair, and among them are one of Andrew Jackson, by Lewis Potter; Robert Livingston, by Augustus Lukeman; James Monroe, by Julia Bracken; George Rogers Clark, by Elsie Ward; Anthony Wayne, by W. Clark Noble; LaSalle, by Louis A. Gudebrod; Marbois, by Henry Herring, and Gobein, by Max Manch.

Then there will be palms and plants from Florida, bamboo poles from the Philippines and other schemes of unique decoration. There will be four figures from the portico of the liberal arts building; four figures from the colonnade around the varied industries building, and more than 100 urns from various buildings and bridges with lions, eagles, female figures, shields and other decorations that were so familiar to visitors at the world's fair. The important feature of the gift is that the statuary will revert permanently to Washington and will be used to adorn the parks and public places. All these works of art collected in the court of history are bound to make an imposing show, and they will serve to transform this portion of Washington into a miniature world's fair.

Historic Desks in Senate Chamber.

ENATOR SPOONER of Wisconsin has inaugurated a movement for the purpose of securing a record of the historical desks used in the senate chamber. It is proposed to trace the history of these desks and prepare a record of the names of all the men who have used them. These names will be engraved on small nickel plates, which will be attached to the proper desks.

The suggestion for this work arose the other day when some one tried to locate the desk which Daniel Webster used when a member of the senate. None of the senate attaches were able to identify it, although if old Isaac Bassett, who was assistant doorkeeper of the senate for upwards of 60 years, had been alive he could have solved the question, as he possessed the secret of the location of all the desks occupied by noted statesmen almost since the building of the capitol. One of the senate secrets is the knowledge of where the desks are that Henry Clay and John C. Calhoun occupied. This secret has descended through a succession of senate officials.

For a long time the desk which was occupied by Jefferson Davis when a senator from Mississippi was exhibited to the public. During the civil war some union soldiers broke into the senate chamber and jabbed the desk full of bayonet holes. The punctures were plugged up and nicely smoothed over, but the marks of the bayonets can be seen to this day. The old Davis desk is now used by Senator Cockrell of Missouri. There has been no change in the style of desks used for the last three-quarters of a century. Occasionally they have to be repaired and new desks have to be put in, but the same antique style is followed.

BOUND TO BE DAMAGED.

Wanted to "Soak" the Company, but Didn't Want to Suffer Himself.

Apologies of the suits for damages that are continually being brought against railway companies, relates the New York Tribune. President Francis, of the St. Louis exposition, said:

"Many of these suits, of course, are mere cases of unjust extortion. It isn't often, though, that the victim of an accident is as alert and resourceful as a man of whom I heard the other day.

"A man and his wife were riding in a car that was derailed. Crash, bang, it went, and then bump, bang, bump, down a steep hill. The man howled with terror, but the car soon came to a stop. He examined himself all over carefully, and found that he was quite unharmed. Then he thought in the same breath of damages and of his wife.

"Are you hurt at all, old girl?" he asked.

"No, thank Heaven!" the woman answered. "Then," said the man, "I tell you what. Let me black your eye, and won't you soak the company hard for damages? It won't hurt you much. I'll just give you one good punch."

SALT RHEUM ON HANDS.

Suffered Agony and Had to Wear Bandages All the Time—Another Cure by Cuticura.

Another cure by Cuticura is told of by Mrs. Caroline Cable, of Waupaca, Wis., in the following grateful letter: "My husband suffered agony with salt rheum on his hands, and I had to keep them bandaged all the time. We tried everything we could get, but nothing helped him until he used Cuticura. One set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills cured him entirely, and his hands have been as smooth as possible ever since. I do hope this letter will be the means of helping some other sufferer."

"I will have a great deal to say when I get started. My friend," answered the veteran, "it isn't the man who has things to say that counts. It's the man who gets a chance to say them."—Washington Star.

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use

Lion Coffee, the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity.

If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package. It is the easiest way to convince yourself, and to make you a PERMANENT PURCHASER.

LION COFFEE is sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages, and reaches you as pure and clean as when it left our factory.

Lion-head on every package. Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

Billion Dollar Grass.

When the John A. Salzer Seed Co. of La Crosse, Wis., introduced this remarkable grass three years ago, little did they dream it would be the most talked of grass in America, the biggest, quickest, the producer on earth, but this has come to pass.

Agricultural Editors wrote about it, Agr. College Professors lectured about it, Agr. Institute Orators talked about it, while in the farm home by the quiet fire-side, in the corner grocery, in the village post-office, at the creamery, at the depot, in fact wherever farmers gathered, Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass, that marvelous grass, good for 5 to 14 tons hay per acre and lots of pasture besides, is always a theme worthy of the farmer's voice.

There comes Bromus Inermis, than which there is no better grass or better permanent hay producer on earth. Crows wherever soil is found. Then the farmer talks about Salzer's Teosinte, which produces 100 stocks from one kernel of seed, 11 ft. high, in 100 days, rich in nutrition and greedily eaten by cattle, hogs, etc., and is good for 80 tons of green food per acre.

Victoria Rape, the luxuriant food for hogs and sheep, which can be grown at 25c a ton, and Speltz at 20c a bu., both great food for sheep, hogs and cattle, also come in for their share in the discussion.

JUST SEND 10c IN STAMPS and this notice to John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., for their big catalog and many farm seed samples. [K. L.]

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger.

J. B. Corton, farmer and lumberman, of Depue, N. C., says: "I suffered for years with my back. It was so bad that I could not walk any distance nor ride in an easy buggy. I do not believe I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me, and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors, and they have also found good results. If you can sift anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble you are at liberty to do so."

SUGGESTIONS AND POSSIBILITIES.

In no part of the United States has there been such wonderful Commercial, Industrial and Agricultural development as along the lines of the Illinois Central and the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroads in the States of Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, within the past ten years. Cities and towns have doubled their population. Solidified business blocks have been erected. Farm lands have more than doubled in value. Hundreds of industries have been established and as a result there is an unprecedented demand for Day Laborers, Skilled Workmen, and especially Farm Tenants.

Parties with small capital, seeking an opportunity to purchase a farm home; farmers who would prefer to rent for a couple of years before purchasing; and day laborers in fields or factories should address a postal card to Mr. J. E. Merry, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Dubuque, Iowa, who will promptly mail printed matter concerning the territory above described, and give specific replies to all inquiries.
